

A THOUGHT ABOUT WORMHOLES AND SYNCHRONICITY

A relevant scientific connection

There is a theory that wormholes weave through a fabric of time and space exist and the phenomena that a subatomic particle can be at two places at the same time is invariably one proof of their existence. While it takes an unpractical amount of energy to create a wormhole and transfer a large object such as a person through a wormhole we are in fact using wormholes on a daily basis. Assuming that consciousness is the recognition of the self of any outer or inner stimulation/condition, and by knowing that the brain operates using electric charges to transfer information to and from it different parts we can deduce that consciousness uses some form of electricity.

The most important aspect of consciousness as we know it is the thought and its sensual and physical implications. All we do with consciousness is think it. If a thought can be simplified then it would be an email, an informative or untranscribable sense of recognition, it is a certain defined point in a flow of recognitions that the self is in the midst of or is the originator/receptor. We know that in an electromagnetic field, any conductive object immersed in it carries the electromagnetic properties of that field. The way I understand it so far, thought seems to act as a jolt of current in an object immersed in a field.

Connectivity

There are certain phenomenon related to thought processes that have an inkling to phenomenon related to quantum physics such as described earlier. Everyone has experienced a form of telepathy at some point in their lives, A thought that finds two people, at least, at the same time sometimes in different places altogether; A dream that we remember in our waking life by noticing similarities in events > A culture develops when its members are all caught on a certain wave of development and all come up with similar ideas at the same time that propagate the culture to a certain direction. A networked system, such as a swarm, works in the same way. Religion has tried to formulate telepathy and formation of wormholes by trying to control the elements that make wormholes: Congregation of many people tuned into the same thought field to maximize the energy concentration, and prayer, a transcribed thought that is meant to project a thought and intention through a wormhole created by the energy of sanctity to different points on time and space. It seems that the common intention or common psychic state creates a charged field of common thought, it is in this field that we find telepathy occurring more often.

Transcending time

When an intention or a will is projected we call it Magick. Magick is essentially the fulfilling of intention, of will. It generally believed by mass cultures worldwide to happen by the concentration of thought on the subject of intention and transportation of that thought to fulfill the will transcending time and space. Most people innately understand the dimensions that transcend time and space. We spend a great deal of our lives in dream state, on a daily basis, dream state occurs in a dimension where time and space are warped and can be traversed. Many people have experienced events in waking state that traverse time and space, for example the act of staring blankly at a fixed point without actually realizing what that point is or having any sense of time, or engaging in an intensely intimate experience, even witnessing a work of art can engage the mind in a timeless dimension (reading a book, watching a film, staring at art in a gallery, listening to music with no durational reminder such as typical song structure).

Causation

Man created a computer. Man created the computer in his image and projected his understanding of the way things work in his creation. In a computer, all 'thought' is information that is made of different combinations of tiny particles called bits which are either 1 or 0. These particles can be used to transfer just about any sort of information we want. Thought can also be made of tiny subatomic particles that when flow through the brain's nerve system in a certain pattern are received as a defined message in the receptors whose acknowledgement we perceive, recognize and are conscious of.

Does thought transit via wormholes? That would explain many things. The way life propagates itself in the world has a lot to do with communication and simultaneous action of its members. What someone does in the morning is connected to what he did last night and if someone delays his leave for work a second because he stays for a second to look at a picture on the wall which reminds him of a thought he had the night before or a dream, he determines the environment for the rest of the world by changing the synchronicity of things had he not delayed his exit. It often is a life and death situation since many deaths occur as a result of unfortunate simultaneous circumstances as well as life. Mates often meet as a result of simultaneous circumstances and their children populate the world and determine the way the world is going to be. Much of the way things happen is down to simultaneous circumstances. The driving force behind action is thought or instinctive subconscious response. Wormholes can explain the fabric which ties simultaneous events together and the transit of these thoughts.

My intuition about this | Dreams | Telepathy

Some of our dreams are locating us in a different point on time and space. Consciousness pops in thru a wormhole to appear somewhere (/sometime?) else. Meeting people in our dreams we don't know in places we have never been to. I don't attribute this to past life at all. These are our dreams being realized (see Déjà vu further on).

Telepathy is happening, I have had situation where without being informed o it consciously I had an idea of something that was happening elsewhere simultaneously. It has been proven. The most shocking situation was while I was sitting at home watching the world cup or something when suddenly out of the blue a thought came to me that my friend has committed suicide and immediately I thought of him jumping in front of the train because another friend of mine did the same a couple of years earlier. I was blanked out mesmerized by that thought, I noticed the time 2pm. The following day talking to a mutual friend I discovered that my friend had actually jumped in front of a train at around the same time and killed himself.

I believe I let my consciousness enter a wormhole and pop out in my friend's head. In fact I think this happens a lot, thoughts by other people entering our minds and appearing in our consciousness, these people could be dreaming. In dream state the mind does not look after the body and the environment it is in (well, somewhat but significantly less than when awake) so the mind can wander and is more open to communication and creation of wormholes.

Déjà vu

When you have a Déjà vu its because you dreamed of this situation before. My experience has proved it.

*by Joel Cahen 2004
updated 2010*